What can paintings teach us about telling stories?

11am - 1pm, Saturday 10th June 2017

10-14 year olds

In this two hour workshop led by award-winning author Anna Carey and inspired by the Eugeen van Mieghem: Port Life exhibition, participants will take artwork as their inspiration to create stories (and pictures, for those who want to draw as well as write) of their own. The children will each choose their favourite picture from the exhibition and take part in a number of writing exercises inspired by it – what's the story behind the image? What led up to the incident depicted in it – and what might happen next? What's happening outside the frame? The workshop will encourage children to look at art in a whole new way – and have fun coming up with their own versions of the stories being told on the gallery walls. Fee €10.
