WELCOME

The Hugh Lane Gallery's Education and Community Outreach department is collaborating with Dublin City Libraries on an ambitious city-wide community engagement programme in tandem with the exhibition Andy Warhol Three Times Out currently on view at the Hugh Lane Gallery until 28 January 2024. This exhibition events programme includes free art talks, film screenings, artist-led workshops, performances, and more for a variety of ages and audiences.

The events take place in local libraries across Dublin city and draw on the breadth of techniques, collaborations, and themes Andy Warhol explored over his long career.

The Andy Warhol Three Times Out exhibition events programme is brought to you through a collaboration between the Hugh Lane Gallery and Dublin City Libraries and is funded by Creative Ireland.

NOVEMBER

Sensory Workshop

Saturday 11 November, 11am-12pm, Walkinstown Library

Join artist Michelle Hall for a workshop to engage neurodivergent participants aged 6-10 years and their families, working with specially made objects and materials created by the artist in response to the Warhol exhibition, through colour, texture, shape, and more. Following the workshop the objects and materials will stay in each library for a number of weeks so that participants and their families can return again to explore them further, in their own time and at their own pace.

Free, booking essential for one parent and one child

Zine Making

Saturday 11 November, 2.30-4.30pm, Pearse Street Library

Andy Warhol had a rich and complicated relationship with the trans women in his life. They were his models, muses, and artistic collaborators, but did not always benefit from his profits off their images. Trans collaborators most famously include Candy Darling and Jackie Curtis, but also the women of his series Ladies and Gentlemen, including Marsha P. Johnson, one of the organisers of STAR: Street Transvestite Action Revolutionaries. Drawing from the images and ideas of these icons, as well as polaroids of ourselves, The Small Trans Library is inviting adults to make their own zines reflecting on trans art and community.

Free, no booking required
